the linguistic turn of the english renaissance a lacanian perspective examines a selection of cultural phenomena of the english renaissance all of which include a focus on language from a lacanian perspective the book examines four inter related cultural symptoms of the english renaissance the paucity of painting the interest in rhetoric the emergence of a literary style focusing on form and a fascination with the myth of orpheus the book argues that the english renaissance an apex of rhetorical theory can offer psychoanalysis further knowledge concerning the intrication of language and flesh especially where feminine jouissance is at stake these language centred phenomena emerge against the backdrop of a peculiar configuration of the visual field which in contrast to other cultures of the european renaissance is largely barren of painting other than portraiture the book will be of interest to psychoanalysts scholars of renaissance culture and those interested in bringing together luce irigaray's early psychoanalytically orientated writings with her more recent and more explicitly political writings irigaray and politics weaves together the ontological political and ethical dimensions of irigaray's philosophy of sexual difference in imaginative ways laura roberts argues that irigaray's philosophical political project must be read as a critique of constructions of western modernity and rationality when appreciated in this way it becomes clear how irigaray's thought makes profound interventions into contemporary political movements and decolonial thought themes that have never been covered before in irigaray scholarship this enables readers to recognise that the question of sexual difference in irigaray's philosophy is concerned not only with refiguring politics and political action but with the foundational structures that govern existence itself georges ngal's pathbreaking satire giambatista viko explores the vexed relations between metropolitan centers and peripheral former colonies through its titular antihero an african professor at an african studies institute divided between european focused cosmopolitans and africanists struggling to write the great african novel and subject to abuse viko realizes he can no longer separate the african and the european parts of his multilayered african francophone culture viko's fate is a warning about the perils of artistic creation in a world where power is not shared part of the wave of african novels of the 1960s and 1970s that grappled with the disenchantments of decolonization giambatista viko can be read at once as a congolese novel a francophone novel and a work of world literature
